NBCUniversal Telemundo Enterprises unveiled, on February 9, plans for the building of its new global headquarters in Miami-Dade County. The company is set to break ground on a 450,000 sq. ft. "built to suit" facility on approximately 21 acres at NW 25th Street and the Florida Turnpike.

NBCUniversal and parent company Comcast will invest more than $250 million in the construction of the division's new global headquarters which will initially house 1,100 employees, with the capacity to expand to approximately 1,300.

The headquarters will bring all of the division's offices, broadcast and production operations under one roof including the Telemundo Network, Telemundo Studios and Telemundo International, as well as its cable network NBC UNIVERSO and its digital media operations.

The new state-of-the-art facility will be designed to be energy efficient and fully optimized to provide operational flexibility. Equipped with the latest production technology, the new headquarters will be an advanced television production facility, second to none in South Florida.

The building of the new headquarters will favorably impact the South Florida economy creating approximately 3,000 construction-related jobs and generate an estimated $400 million in sales for Florida businesses. The new headquarters will have prime Florida Turnpike visibility and offer direct access to the city's major thoroughfares.

With the support of Governor Rick Scott, Miami-Dade Mayor Carlos Gimenez and the Beacon Council, the new building will mark the largest investment ever in a state-of-the-art multimedia production and broadcast facility in South Florida.
